Red Cross To Aid Flood Sufferers

Will Accept Applications for Disaster Relief

Adams Outlines Red Cross Policy To Aid Victims

The Saline County chapter of the American Red Cross today announced that starting Tuesday applications can be made for flood disaster relief as a result of the recent flood waters.

Here to receive applications will be John W. Douglas of the St. Louis office of the American Red Cross, who will take information on each case and turn the findings over to a local committee, which will be set up by Ernest Duncan, disaster chairman of the Saline chapter.

Mr. Douglas will take applications from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday from those who suffered flood damage in the Saline county area.

Adams Outlines Policy

Alfred Adams, Eldorado high school coach who is the Saline county chapter chairman, today outlined the policy of the American Red Cross in its disaster relief program.

"Those who need more than immediate food, clothing, shelter or medical care may make application to Red Cross for rehabilitation assistance," he stated, adding.

"The Red Cross does help families re-establish themselves by providing funds for repairs or replacement (owner occupied) of homes; essential household furnishings; essential clothing and food; and medical care, but only when the disaster has caused the need and only with your help through the use of your resources of insurance, cash, credit and labor."

"The Red Cross expects you to use your resources but not to the extent that their use would cause undue hardship. While Red Cross does help fill disaster-caused needs, it is not a disaster insurance agency replacing total losses."

Mr. Adams said requests for assistance will receive individual consideration, that plans will be discussed in detail with the head of the family.

"Red Cross must verify home ownership, earnings and other resources and liabilities," he stated. "This, of course, takes time but it is necessary in order to be equally fair to you and to the American people who support this program. Your personal information will be held in confidence."

Urgent cases will come first, Mr. Adams stated. He listed widows, orphans, aged and any who might be injured as some who would receive priority.

"You and the Red Cross worker will work out together a plan, using your resources as far as possible, and the Red Cross supplementing your resources when necessary with rehabilitation award," he said. "The staff then reviews, with an advisory committee of local citizens, the final plans for rehabilitation."

Pointing out that the help given through the Red Cross is an outright gift from the American people, Mr. Adams said that the Red Cross cannot lift all the problems from each person's shoulders, but it will help or those problems that are beyond the means of the sufferer.

Harrisburg Voting Extremely Light in Judicial Election

With no opposition on the ballot, Harrisburg township voting in the judicial election today was extremely light.

In fact, up to 1 p.m., only 31 persons had cast ballots.

Running without opposition were the three incumbent judges of the First Judicial circuit, C. Ross Reynolds of Vienna, Harold L. Zimmerman of Marion and Clarence E. Wright of Carbondale.

All the Harrisburg voting was being done at the Harrisburg city hall. There was one polling place also in each of the other 12 townships of the county.

Dr. Ralph H. Woods to Deliver HTHS Commencement Address Tuesday Night

Dr. Ralph H. Woods, Murray (Ky.) State College president who will deliver the Harrisburg Township high school commencement address at Davenport gymnasium Tuesday night, is a native Virginian who received his Ph. B. degree at Berea (Ky.) college, his B. S. in Agriculture and M. A. degrees at the University of Kentucky, and his Ph. D. at Cornell University.

At Cornell he majored in education and minored in economics and rural social organization.

For a number of years he was professor of education at the University of Kentucky. In 1936 he became director of Vocational Education in Kentucky and served in that capacity until 1945, when he went to Murray State as president. Under his guidance the standing of the college continues its steady climb and now is recognized as one of the top state colleges in the nation.

In 1948 Dr. Woods, at the request of the U. S. State Department, went to Greece on a special mission to assist with the reha-

Religion Is Your Only Answer, The Rev. Cummins Tells Graduates

Baccalaureate Services Held at Davenport Gymnasium

Who am I? Where am I going? are questions which will often be asked by yourselves, the Rev. W. L. Cummins, pastor of the First Methodist church, told Harrisburg Township high school graduates last night.

The Rev. Cummins delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Davenport gymnasium. Commencement exercises will be held Tuesday night, also in Davenport gymnasium.

The answer to the questions—Who am I? and Where am I going?—will not be found in materialism or by psychology, the Rev. Cummins stated.

When you find yourself justifying your life before God, then you will find the answer, he said.

The Rev. Cummins stated he believed Christian religion has the only answer to the questions.

"Man became a living soul by the breath of God, he is not just a material being. Man is never satisfied, he knows right from wrong."

"God has touched us with a mind and a soul and a man cannot rest until he has created something a little better."

"You will not find rest until you find rest in Him," the Rev. Cummins told the graduates.

In previous years, the Rev. Cummins told the graduates, a utopia was promised the educated persons. But after wars and economic crises and discovery of a deadly power which can blot out human existence we can see spiritual con-

Record Flight

Air Force Captain Soars 18 Miles Into Space in Balloon

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—An Air Force captain soared a record 18 miles into space in a balloon flight Sunday. He remained at that height for nearly two hours.

Capt. Joe Kittinger, 28, of Holloman Air Force Base, N. M., said he could see the eastern shore of Lake Michigan more than 300 miles away when he hit the record altitude for a balloon ascension.

The red-haired pilot ascended to more than 96,000 feet and remained aloft until he was ordered down because of a breakdown in radio communications. He had been scheduled to stay at that height for about six hours.

Tops Old Mark

The previous record balloon altitude was 72,395 feet, set last Nov. 8 in a launching near Rapid City, S. D.

Kittinger's record was about 30,000 feet short of the highest altitude man has ever reached. The altitude record for manned aircraft is 126,000 feet, set by the Air Force rocket plane X-2.

Kittinger made the ascent sealed in a three-by-eight-foot capsule-type gondola. The ascension was so smooth I hardly knew I was airborne," Kittinger told newsmen Sunday night after undergoing a medical checkup. Doctors said the pilot's physical condition was "every bit as good" as when he left the ground.

Drops In Creek

Oxygen for the flight was supplied by a liquid oxygen converter, and carbon dioxide was removed by a chemical air regeneration system, enabling Kittinger to breathe in the rarified atmosphere.

The balloon came down in a creek near Weaver, Minn., about 70 miles southeast of Minneapolis.

The gondola skinned tree tops and utility lines in landing, but Kittinger was unharmed.

All told, Kittinger was in the air for six hours and 34 minutes. Purpose of the flight was to gather scientific data and to conduct medical and psychological experiments for eventual manned rocket tests.

Benton Couple Fatally Burned

BENTON, Ill. (UPI)—An inquest is scheduled tonight at Benton into the deaths of an elderly couple who succumbed early Sunday when flames swept through their luxurious house trailer.

The victims were William E. Hope, 69, and his wife, Reatha, 59. Hope was a retired boilermaker of Detroit. He and his wife had been in Benton about a month and a half visiting relatives, the Rev. and Mrs. Elijah Stockton.

Coroner Barney Browning said the fire apparently was started by an exploding oil heater. Hope was found burned to death on a couch near the heater, and his wife was near a bedroom door.

The fire was reported by neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. James Stella.

Fire Chief Leroy Sweetin said flames were shooting from all the windows of the 30-foot trailer when firemen arrived.

Browning said Hope was reported to have suffered a heart attack Saturday night.

Eisenhower Requests $149.5 Million for Postal Service

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President

Eisenhower today asked Congress for $149,500,000 in extra money to operate the postal service in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

He said it was necessary to prevent the major reduction in postal services threatened by Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield.

The supplemental appropriation request is necessitated, the President said, by a sharply increasing volume of mail and a resultant heavier workload in the Post Office Department.

In January the administration asked $3,250,600,000 for the postal service in the new fiscal year, but Congress cut this back to $3,192,000.

Eisenhower's request today, contained in a letter to House Speaker Sam Rayburn, included $92,100,000 in new funds plus restoration of the $57,400,000 cut by Congress from the original budget request.

The President when he signed the reduced appropriation on May 27, said that without additional funds postal services would be "substantially curtailed" beginning July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The two plaintiffs' mother was bequeathed the acreage in the will of her sister, Mrs. Katie Siddall, who died in February, 1956. Mrs. Siddall's will was entered into probate April 30, 1956, and Mrs. Robertson died in October, 1956.

Will Curtail Services

The President sent with his request a report from Budget Director Percival Brundage saying, "It is urgent that immediate action be taken on the . . . request in order that the Post Office Department may plan for a level of service within the funds provided before July 1. . . ."

If additional funds are not available by the time it is necessary to apportion 1958 appropriations, apportionments will be made so as to require appropriations for the full year to be carried on with the amounts already appropriated."

Mr. Reynolds was a member of L.O.O.F. Lodge at Dorrisville for 52 years. He was a charter member of the Dorrisville Baptist church and was a deacon and trustee of the church at the time of his death.

The funeral was held at 2 p.m. today in the Dorrisville Baptist church with Rev. L. G. Hartley officiating, assisted by Rev. William Fuson. Burial was in the Liberty cemetery.

Dr. Fowler is survived by his wife, Lulu, and two brothers, W. H. Fowler of Washington, D. C., and Charles H. Fowler of Socorro, New Mexico.

Dr. Fowler was a member of the Egyptian Council No. 70, of Royal and Select Masters of the state of Illinois, in Harrisburg. He served with the medical corps in the Spanish American war for its entire duration and also served during the entire period of World War I. He was recalled to duty for World War II and passed the physical requirements, but was beyond the age for service. He was a member of the medical reserve with the rank of lieutenant and belonged to the VFW and the American Legion. There will be Masonic ritual observed at the funeral home at 7:30 p.m. today.

The Turner funeral home was in charge of funeral arrangements and L.O.O.F. rites were observed at the church. L.O.O.F. members were pallbearers and the deacons of the church were honorary pall-bearers.

Defense—and the Budget

Editorial — BY BRUCE BOSSAT

President Eisenhower's nationwide appeal on behalf of his 71.8-billion-dollar budget is meeting the reserved reception which could easily have been anticipated.

From a good many who might well have been figured to be in his corner, the question comes: "Why did he wait so long to speak up in firm tones?"

From those who long since have placed themselves in opposition to the President's budget, the report is that they are still largely unmoved.

Whatever merit there may be in Mr. Eisenhower's arguments for this budget—and especially for the defense and foreign aid proposals—it is abundantly clear that he long ago weakened his case by his lack of insistence and his seeming willingness to tolerate sharp criticism of it within his own administration.

In that curious period of backing and filling after the budget's introduction in January, sentiment against a whopping federal outlay built up strongly both in Congress and among many citizens. The mood of the country now favors substantial reduction.

Possibly the President's appeal will have a long-range effect that today is not readily apparent. If it does, the chances are that the defense program, for which he spoke most forcefully, may come closest to the level he seeks. But foreign aid and certain domestic services would appear to face hard going no matter what.

Should it happen that way, there would be some irony in the fact. For so thoughtful a public figure as the eminent scientist, Dr. Vanavar Bush, no advocate of unpreparedness, has suggested that it is in the defense field—the massive core of the budget—that real savings might well be made.

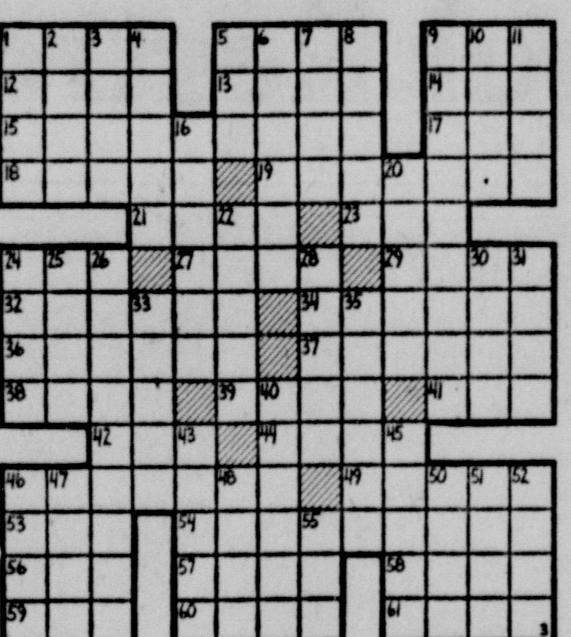

Bush believes that greater unification of the armed services, thus eliminating what he sees as quite wasteful competition and duplication, holds a big key to lower defense spending.

Whether or not this is the key, Bush has some good and responsible company in believing that the nation's defense might be helped rather than hurt by reduced but more wisely applied expenditures.

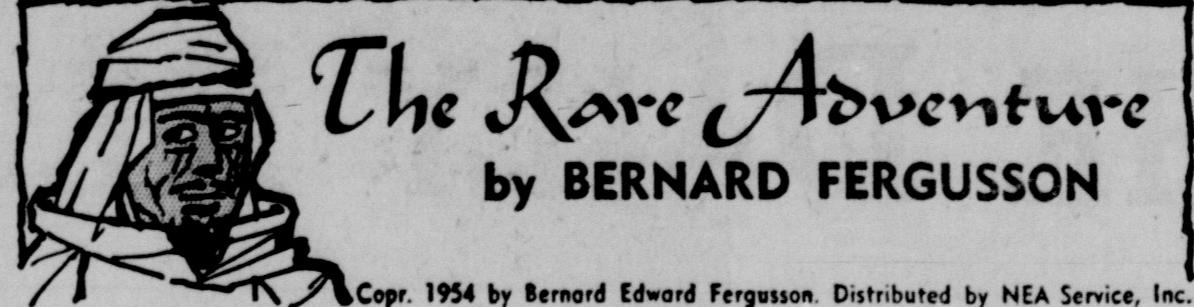

Unless tighter control of defense spending can be developed, the ax wielders in and out of Congress will find that for the most part they are hacking away at government's fringe growth. The big rock in the center will go largely uncathed, marred only by the loss of a few small chips. And there's not much economy in small chips.

There was maddeningly little breeze in the harbor, and they headed the boat out along the weedy quay wall to the entrance, where they could catch a little puff from the northward.

Georges spoke. "What were you just going to tell me, Colonel? It is important for me, for now my decision cannot be recalled."

Allan had no choice. "I wish I could have half an hour to explain to you fully why I did it," he said, "instead of about 30 seconds. But I did help Captain Dillon yesterday, in the defense of the Gendarmerie. I hadn't meant to, but I was angry because they shot him in the back while he was trying to keep the peace. Don't be hasty in judging what I did; we'll have a chance to talk it over later."

"Thank you for telling me," said Georges. "Please do not worry. We have come to know each other well these last few hours, and there need be no misunderstanding between us."

Paleologue, standing up and flailing his arms, attracted the attention of the French frigate. Georges and Allan might have been of any race, but a Franciscan monk is as unmistakable in an Arab boat as he would be anywhere else. A loudhailer spoke from her bridge in French:

"You are from the Gendarmerie?"

"No," shouted Paleologue, "but we can tell you the situation."

"Stay where you are!" And the frigate gave herself the merest touch ahead, a stop, and was close enough for a skillfully thrown heaving line to drop neatly across Paleologue's shoulders.

The decks were lined with steel-mailed marines, ready, by the look of them, for a heavily opposed landing.

Paleologue was full of chat. "Father Paleologue," he said introducing himself, and shaking hands all around.

The young colonel's face lit up, and he said, "Aha! Your name is well known to me. De la Meziere."

Allan gasped, but Paleologue did not notice.

"And may I present a distinguished Scottish officer who has happened to be in Seknou during our present misfortunes?" Colonel Larg.

De la Meziere smiled charmingly. "I hardly dared hope that it would prove to be the same, and nobody in Tunis could enlighten me. It is a long way from Sheikh Misrine."

"De la Meziere! What an extraordinary chance!"

"Let me introduce you to these officers: Capitaine de Corvette de Kergoaz, Commandant Peequerie. This is Colonel Larg, of the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force, a former camarade de combat. And who is your companion?"

"This," said Pere Paleologue, in almost a hectoring tone, for he was determined to have Georges properly received, "is Monsieur Georges Fernana, a gentleman of Seknou, who has been rendering Colonel Larg and myself the most signal services."

De la Meziere's eyebrows twitched at the name, but he shook Georges warmly by the hand, and the

by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:

Monument To Czech Heroism At Lidice, Ill., Is Now Forgotten; Congressman From Brooklyn Makes Russian Diplomat Leave Elevator; Government Scientists Can't Circulate H-Bomb Petition.

WASHINGTON. — The nation last week placed wreaths on the graves of heroes who fought for freedom.

And the youngsters who stepped up to bat had no idea that a few feet away stood a monument to 173 heroes—heroes who were shot so that youngsters far away in another country could play baseball in freedom.

BROOKLYNITE DIDN'T BUDGE

Congresswoman Edna Kelly (D., N. Y.) had an unpublicized brush with Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister Mikoyan the other day while both happened to be staying at the Ambassador Krantz Hotel in Vienna.

Mrs. Kelly was in Austria studying the Hungarian refugee problem. Mikoyan head been sent by the Kremlin to woo the Austrians.

One evening, Mrs. Kelly stepped into the hotel's telephone booth-sized elevator just as Mikoyan's party arrived. The hotel manager, oblivious before Mikoyan, beckoned to Mrs. Kelly to vacate the elevator and make room for the Soviet big shot.

Mrs. Kelly firmly stood her ground.

"I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" she said. Then turning to the elevator operator, she ordered: "You take me to the third floor."

Mikoyan was flustered for a moment, then shrugged and walked up the stairs while the congresswoman from Brooklyn rode.

GOVERNMENT SCIENTISTS AND H-BOMB

Government scientists who tried to circulate a petition against continued H-bomb tests suddenly found their constitutional right of free petition yanked from under them at the National Institutes of Health last week.

About half of the scientists and medical experts at the health institutes, a government agency at Bethesda, Md., had signed the petition when suddenly Dr. Francis Arnold, a dentist working with the Institute of Dental Research, seized it. He refused to return the petition on the ground that it was being circulated on government property and on government time.

This aroused a terrific back-stab furore at the Health Institutes, where many scientists have seen how strontium 90 in H-bomb fallout increases leukemia and other forms of cancer. Many doctors also felt strongly regarding the Eisenhower position taken last fall against Adlai Stevenson's proposal to ban H-bomb tests—if Russia would agree.

Dr. Arnold was not available for comment. However, Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Health Institutes, confirmed the fact that the petition had been confiscated by Dr. Arnold and that it had not been returned. He said he had supported Dr. Arnold's confiscation of the petition because government scientists should not be allowed to circulate a political petition.

Asked whether scientists lost the power of engaging in politics merely because they worked for the government, Dr. Shannon retreated somewhat. He said he was in a delicate position, but that he would return the petition to the scientists if they agreed to circulate it only in their homes and not on government property.

Dr. Shannon did not mention the Eisenhower-Stevenson debate

COUNTY TB BOARDS FACE PROBLEM

Would Governor Stratton assume the responsibility of deciding who may live and who shall die of tuberculosis? If House Bill 1060, providing an emergency deficiency appropriation to the State Health Department is delayed further and is lost, this is the problem that will face many county TB boards in downstate Illinois and the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanatorium in Chicago. It will mean that many patients with active tuberculosis may have to leave the sanatorium. Others found to have active TB will not be able to go to the sanatorium because of lack of TB funds. Counties involved are Alexander, Bond, Cook, Cumberland, Franklin, Marion, Hardin, Pope, Pulaski, Saline, and Williamson. However, the TB problem in the entire state will be seriously affected if this bill fails.

The State Department of Health subsidizes local tuberculosis sanatorium boards for hospitalization of persons afflicted with tuberculosis. Counties levy a local TB tax and when the local funds are insufficient, the sanatorium board may apply to the state Health Department for subsidy up to $4 per day per patient.

During the last biennium, the appropriation by the legislature to the State Health Department for tuberculosis was reduced from $5 million to $3.8 million. Governor Stratton stated to a committee at the time that if more funds were needed, a deficiency appropriation would be made. This has not been forthcoming and a deficiency of $1.9 million now exists to pay current obligations from October, 1956, to June 30, 1956.

House Bill 1060, now before the House Committee on Appropriations, would provide the necessary funds ($1,900,000) to make up the deficiency for this biennium. This bill must pass if a crisis in the fight against TB is to be averted.

The Chicago Tribune in an editorial dated Tuesday, May 28, stated, "Curing them is profitable to the state and local taxpayers, because if they are not cured, these people and their dependents will become public charges at far greater expense than the cost of TB treatment."

Garden Calendar for June

June first is a most fruitful day for all above-ground crops that can be planted now. Most favorable for seed beds and flower gardens.

The second and fifth are poor days for planting, but good for killing weeds, briars and poison ivy.

On the sixth and eighth, plant late beans, corn, eggplant, melons, tomatoes, bell-peppers and other above-ground crops. Good for planting flowers, and sowing grain, hay and forage crops.

The ninth and tenth continues good for above-ground plants and should bring a heavy yield. Also continues good for seed bed and planting of lettuce, cabbages, celery and other leafy vegetables.

The eleventh and twelfth are considered barren days and neither to be used for planting or sowing.

The thirteenth to fifteenth are considered favorable for planting carrots, beets, onions and root crops.

The sixteenth and seventeenth are days to be used for the destruction of plant pests.

Eighteenth to twentieth, onions, carrots, salsify and other root plants will do well. Excellent for vines.

The twenty-first and twenty-second are considered barren days.

On the twenty-third and twenty-fourth, plant late potatoes, beets, radishes, and carrots where climate is favorable.

The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth are apt to find seeds rotting in the ground.

From the twenty-seventh to the twenty-ninth, are very fruitful days for the planting of corn, beans, tomatoes, melons and above-ground crops, also seed beds and flower gardens.

The thirtieth is a good day for killing pests, as it is poor for planting.

Most favorable days for transplanting are the first through the

Milwaukee Bid Highest

Bonus By Metropolis Star to Sign
With Braves May Exceed $100,000

By SAM HANCOCK
United Press Sports Writer

METROPOLIS, Ill. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves Saturday signed star high school catcher to one of the biggest bonus contracts ever offered a rookie, outbidding six other major league clubs.

Robert Dale (Hawk) Taylor, 18, became Braves property by inking a contract believed to exceed $100,000.

Taylor, who graduated from Metropolis High School, will report to the Milwaukee club at New York Tuesday.

A source close to the here said Taylor got "at least $105,000." He added that a figure of $125,000 was "too high."

At Milwaukee, an unidentified source said Taylor's bonus was between $80,000 and $100,000. This same source also said there were reports the figure exceeded $100,000.

Another source, close to the family, revealed Taylor grabbed a Braves offer which topped a Brooklyn Dodgers bid of $88,000. Father Is Please Billy Joe Davidson was believed to have been paid more than $100,000 in 1951 to sign with the Cleveland Indians, and the Pittsburgh Pirates were reported to have paid $100,000 for Paul Pettit in 1950.

Taylor and his father, Vance, refused to divulge the price paid. But Taylor's father, who formerly was a first baseman with Mayfield, Ky., in the Kitty League, was tickled with the contract.

"It's hard for me to believe he's getting so much," he said.

The only official word from the Braves was that scout Wid Matthews, a native of Metropolis and long-time friend of the family, offered Taylor "in excess of $4,000."

This was the figure quoted when pitcher Johnny Antonelli — now with the New York Giants — signed with the Braves. Later it was reported he received $75,000.

Says He's "Wonderful Prospect"

Matthews said every major league club except the Washington Senators and the Cincinnati Redlegs was interested in the young catcher.

"He is a wonderful prospect," Matthews said. "If he wasn't I wouldn't be down here."

Representatives of seven clubs began talking with Taylor shortly after his graduation this week. The talks continued through Friday night and then, early Saturday, the Taylors made their decision.

In addition to the Braves, five clubs sent representatives to the Taylor home, and Frank Lane of the St. Louis Cardinals held telephone conversations with the boy and his family.

Other clubs were the Chicago Cubs, the New York Giants, the Detroit Tigers, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies.

Taylor, a nephew of Ben Taylor who played with the Braves several years ago, bats and throws right handed. He batted more than .700 in four years of high school baseball and swatted 34 home runs in high school and American Legion competition, his father said.

New Regulations
Permit FHA Loans
By Elderly Persons

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Federal Housing Administration will now permit elderly persons to buy FHA mortgage insured homes, even if they have to borrow funds for a down payment, an FHA official reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary U. Cleverley, Washington, outlined revised FHA regulations here for some 200 persons, representing business, labor, civic, fraternal and other organizations. She is a special agent on housing for the elderly for the FHA.

A person over 60, she said, may qualify for an FHA insured loan even without a down payment, if he can borrow the money from his family, employer, or other acceptable sources, and demonstrate he can pay off the mortgage.

New FHA regulations also permit federally insured loans for non-profit groups which want to build apartments for elderly persons, for the elderly for the FHA.
